Supporting Your Legal Arguments: Techniques for Researching Immigration Remedies for Survivors of Domestic and Sexual Violence

Have you ever received an RFE that you think is wrong on the law? Or felt unsure about how to argue an unusual case? In the first part of a series on Enhancing Lawyering Skills, ASISTA Senior Legal Counsel Amy Cheung and Senior Policy Counsel Cecelia Friedman Levin will review and demonstrate how to find publicly available sources of law to support legal arguments for survivor-based remedies and will share best practices for conducting legal research. Participants will have an opportunity to practice these skills through at-home practice exercises and interactive demonstrations.
